FIGHTING ABOUT GHOSTS

Remarkable Suit at Law Now Being Heard at Anderson, Indiana.

Wenithy Man Sued by a Medium and Spiritualistic Phenomena May Be Tested Before Court and Jary.

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 31.—In the superior court of this county the $10,000 damage suit of Mrs. Dr. Hilligoss vs. W. R. Covert was opened yesterday. This case has attracted widespread interest. It involves the question of spiritualism, which for the first time has really been brought into court. Mr. Covert has for years, through eight hations and in five languages, made the sweeping assertion that all persons claiming to be spiritualistic mediums are either liars, knaves, fools, frands or ignoramuses, and he has posted, and had posted for five years, $500 that he can prove it by going before a jury and exposing any spiritual manifestations that any medium will bring before him and the jury.

Mrs. Hilligoss' claims that he made the assertion regarding her personally, and wants dimages. It is expected that the case will come to a point where tests, exposures, etc., will have to be made before the jury.

Spiritualists are here from different parts of the country and it is understood are backing Mrs. Hilligoss. Mr. Covert made outh that he was worth $250,000. The court rooms and halls were packed. itualism, which for the first time has re-

HOLMES' ALLEGED WIVES

Prosecution Scheming to Get Mrs. Pitezel's Testimony.

THE PRISONER SHEDS TEARS

Appeared to Be Deeply Affected by the Presence of Miss Yoke, One of His Victims, as a Witness, Who Gives Testimony of a Very Damaging

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—The fourth day of the Homes trial opened this morning with the prisoner looking as fresa and bright as when he was first arranged in court.

When placed in the cock as scanned a letter, and north the man is not wholly nerveless was shown by the way the paper shook in his hand.

After court opened there wasquite a wait for the district attorney. Homes passed the interval by consuling with his counsel and chatting and laugning with the court officers.

Sidney L. Samuels, a Fort Worth, Texas, lawyer, was the first winess to-day.

He was shown the note for $15,000, signed by Piezel under the name o. Ismon T. Lyman and to take which Holmes got the $5,000 from Mrs.—Piezel. Witness identified the handwriting in the body of the note as his own.

The witness had a strong southern accent, and spoke with great rapidity in riving his tesumony. He identified Holmes "as the individual in the case there who I knew under the name of Pratt."

THAT $5,000 NOTE.

THAT $5,000 NOTE.

I knew under the name of Pratt."

THAT $5,000 NOTE.

Mr. Samuels' testimony showed that Holmes nor Pitezel never obtained any money on the note, but used it to extort the $5,000 from Mrs. Pitezel.

Whether it is possible that Holmes could have been plotting Pitezel's death in April or May he only probably knows, but he certainly had some motive for obtaining a regularly drawn up note.

The way he retained possession of it was to tell Mr. Samuels that he had lost the original note, and another one was drawn up, leaving the litrs in his hands. William E. Geary, the agent of the Fitelity Insurance Company, who testified esterday, was recalled to the stand.

Mr. Graham put Mr. Geary on the stand for the purpose of proving that the presoner has a wife in Wilmette, Ill., as well as the woman who is in this city now and whomhe married under the name of Howard.

As it was the evident intention of Mr. Graham in proving the identity of the woman in Wilmette as Holmes' wife that he might thusbefree toplace "Mrs. Howard" on the stand, the defense made a vigorous objection to Geary testifying.

The objection was overruled, and Geary testified to the fact of seeing and talking to a woman in Wilmette who show how he will be a woman in Wilmette, in which he speaks of their marmarriage, was read to the pury.

HOLMES WEPT.

The defense catered a general objection to any and all testimony bearing upon the question of Holmes' marriages.

Just after this Holmes, for the first time since the trial, gave way, and so acute was his emotion that he wept. A fair blonde-baired girl was led toward the witness stand.

When Holmes saw her he started, and his pallid face flushed and then grew chastly pale. He beckoned eagerly to his attorneys, and with tears running down his cheeks talked with great earnestness to them.

attorneys, and wan tears ranning down his cheeks talked with great earnestness to them.

The witness was asked her name and gave it as Georgianna Yoke. Then the reason for Holmes' engerness was apparent.

It was the girl whom he married under the name of H. M. Howard. Holmes dreed his lawyers to use every means in their power to prevent the witness from testration, but their efforts were useless, as the coart overraled all their exceptions and ordered the examination to go on.

The witness kept her eyes cast down, and, like Mrs. Pitezel, a court officer repeated her low answers to the jury. Never once did she glance at the man she once thought was her lussand. He, on the contrary, looked longingly toward her, and occasionally wiped a terr sway.

Miss Yoke lestified that she knew the prisoner under the names of Holmes and While he was in juil engaged Thomas B. Harvey and Howe as lawyers to defend him.

Harvey and Howe as lawyers to defend him.

Mr. Graham made no reference to any marriage between the prisoner and Miss Yoke, but went on and asked her if she was in Phitagelphia with him in 1894.

She sail she was, and then he asked her if she remembered a man calling to see Holmes at No. 1905 North Eleventh street on Sunday might, September 1. This man, Holmes had since told fer, was Piezel, Holmes said at the time that he had an engagement with the men the next day. The next day he was out of the housefrom 10.30 to 3.30 or 4 o clock.

Mr. Rotan here broke in and stated to the court that the prisoner asked permission to be allowed to cross-examine the witness.

The trial of the assault case occurred this morning. Assistant District Attorney Mullowny conducting the prosecution.

When Mr. Grahm resumed his examina-tion he seemed to bring out something that he did not like. He asked the witness when the presoner returned on the Sunday afternoon if he said anything about going when the prisoner returned a discussion afternoon if he said anything about going away.

She replied that he had spoken of this before, and the only thing it was necessary to do was to pack up. This reply seemed to nettle Mr. Graham.

When they left this city that Sunday night they went to Indianapolis. Holmes remained with her for a day or two in Indianapolis, and then went to St. Louis. He returned to Indianapolis, and from there went to Frankin, Ind., the home of her parents, and from there to Indianapolis again.

There he told her he had received a telegram calling him to Philadelphia, to close a deed with the Pennsylvania Railroad, and he came here. He remnined away several days. This was the time Holmes was identifying Pitezel's body.

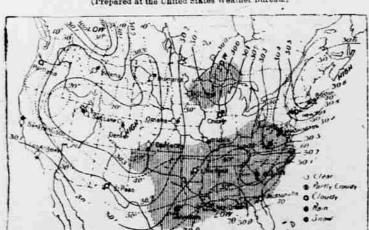

After Holmes returned from Philadelphia he went to St. Louis. While giving her testimony Miss Voke occasionally raised her hand to her hrow as if bewildered or tired.

The defendant is charged with having attempted, on the night of the 13th of September, on H street between Eighth and Ninth streets northwest, to take a purse from the hands of Mrs. Winifred Canty, who, with a lady friend, was waiking quietly along.

The case is a complicated and peculiar one. Mrs. Canty has positively identified the actor as the individual who assaulted her. Reeves, who enjoys a good reputation, and is considered well to do, admits being in the vicinity on the evening of the assault, but positively denies being the guidy party. Officer Carison made the arrest.

Campbell Carrington and Edwin B. Hay appeared for the defendant. The panel was accepted without protest from either side. All witnesses in the case were ordered to withdraw from the courtroom.

Mr. Mullowny made the opening address for the presentation.

Attorney Hay, in his address, said they would show that this was one of the greatest cases of mistaken identity on record. He detailed the movements of Reeves on the night of the attempted robbery, as here-tofore stated in The Times. He said the defense would prove an alloi in the case and would show that Reeves had not been on H street at the time mentioned.

MRS. CANTY'S TESTIMONY.

Mrs. Canty was the first witness called to the box. She appeared in a neat costume of black and wore a natty sik cape. A pretty hat with purple headgear adorned her head. She was somewhat nervous, but clearly recited the story of the assault. She again pointed out and positively identified Reeves as her assailant.

Mrs. Canty, on cross-examination, said she left home about 8.30 p.m. and started down town with Mrs. Corridon. She had $100 in her satchel. They went into a laundry and afterward started along H street toward Eighth.

She saw a man coming to meet them. He stopped her when they met and put one hand on each arm. In one hand she had her pocket-book. She thought he was after the money. She screamed and he ran. She pursued him till he had run across Ninth street. MRS. CANTY'S TESTIMONY.

Ninth street.

He started diagonally across Ninth and she saw him last on the west side of the street running into the city.

As they reached Ninth street she fell on the east side of the street. She saw him running along the west side. She was picked up and taken home, and sa wo thing more of Reeves till she was taken to the station to identify him.

HEBEGGED FOR MERCY.

She was positive in her identification then, as she was at the moment on the stand. He said to her, "Have mercy on me, lady," and she repiled, "How can you expect me to have mercy on you when you had none on me."

Mrs. Corridon, her companion, told the story of the outling of herself and Mrs. Canty during the evening very much the same as Mrs. Canty had done.

She positively identified Mr. Reeves as the man who had selzed Mrs. Canty. When he ran, she said, Mrs. Canty was so close to him in pursuit that she could apparently have put her hand on him at any moment until she fell.

After the recess Lawyer Ed Hay con-HEBEGGED FOR MERCY.

After the recess Lawyer Ed Hay conducted the cross-examination of Mrs. Corridon. She said in answer to his questions that they remained in the laundry only about ten minutes. There Mrs. Canty took out her pocketbook, but she did not know whether anyon locked in at the know whether anyone looked in at the door. The trial was in progress when this re

Judge Cole's court was this morning the scene of merriment that has undoubtedly never before been paralleled in local courts of justice as far as the continuity and scope of the bilitarity went.

The question of the validity of the will of the late James E. Young, the eccentric old man of Columbia road, who left

"Aunt" Loiusa Curtis, an old colored woman, was the central figure in the comedy that made every looker on feel that it was well worth the price of admis-

She is the typical "beto the wah mammy," and her voice had that inquisitive, wondering, upward accent that makes her testimony lose much of its uniqueness when written. She had worked for Mr. Young the last six months before he died.

"Tell us about Mr. Young," began Mr. Lipscomb.

Our Only Chance

The prospect is black indeed, and we can see but one way to save ourselves—We have decided to adopt the desperate measure of sacrificing our superb store, of Winter Clothing and Overcoats at almost any price to raise cash. We must have the money—$15.855 8—to meet this note by December 2. The time is short—the amount very great. int very great Suits, Trousers, Overcoats and Children's Clothing will have to be turned into money at ouer. It's all new goods—no shoddy—you know the qualities we've made a reputation for. The stock has not even been picked over yet—so backward has the season been. During the next thirty days every Suit and Overcoat aill be sold for less than wholesale.
